

30 days before the Victory: the names of unknown heroes in letters

Students of the Faculty of Economics and Management joined the “30 days to Victory” campaign that started in Minsk, organizing on April 18, together with teachers from the Department of Organization and Management, a “dialogue of generations” on the topic: “Names of unknown heroes in letters.” Everyone knows that Victory Day is a special holiday for Belarusians. This is the day when we all pay tribute to the heroes who gave their lives for our peaceful and happy life. We know many of them by name, but many remain unknown heroes....They all went to the front to bring our Victory closer every day! And we learn about such heroes from newsreels, archival documents and simply from family letters, which are still kept as a relic! With such relics, the head of the department of organization and management, Doctor of Economic Sciences, Professor N.P. Belyatsky came to meet the students, who spoke about the heroic path of his father and gave the students the opportunity to get in touch with history directly through the documents of those years...
